OKLAHOMA

Population 2,233,351 (U. S. Census, 1950)

State Capital, OKLAHOMA CITY

Oklahoma is bounded on the north by Kansas, east by Arkansas and Missouri, south and west by Texas. It is over 300 miles in length from east to west, and in width from north to south averages about 160 miles. Its land area is 69,031 square miles.

The surface is a vast, rolling plain, treeless in the west, but rising in the east to the Chautauqua, Wichita, and Ozark Mountains which are heavily wooded. The Arkansas and Red Rivers are navigable for boats of light draft for some distance into the state. The prevailing type of soil is a deep, dark red loam. The climate is variable and the rainfall in the west is scanty, though it is generally sufficient in the east. Dry farming is extensively practiced in the western section. The Weather Bureau at Oklahoma City gives the temperature (annual monthly mean) as 60.1, highest on record, 113; lowest on record, —17. The total annual precipitation is 31.65 inches.

The Indian Territory, which was combined with Oklahoma Territory to form the state, was the home of the Cherokee, Creek, Choctaw, Chickasaw and Seminole Indians. The descendants in 1950 numbered 53,769, according to the census.

The development of petroleum in the state dates from about the beginning of the century. In 1951, Texas, California and Louisiana ranked higher in production of crude petroleum, Oklahoma occupying fourth place.

Among the institutions of higher education in the state are the University of Oklahoma, located at Norman, and the Oklahoma Agricultural and Mechanical College at Stillwater.

OREGON

Population 1,521,341 (U. S. Census, 1950)

State Capital, SALEM

Oregon is bounded on the north by Washington, east by Idaho, south by Nevada and California, and west by the Pacific Ocean. Its width east and west is 395 miles; length north and south is 295 miles; land area, 96,850 square miles; rank in area, ninth. Oregon has 300 air miles of coast line.

It is divided unequally by the Cascade Mountains. East of this range the surface is generally undulating table land, with high, cone-like hills and deep canyons. Between the Cascade and Coast ranges is the Willamette valley, 60 miles wide by 150 miles long and exceedingly fertile; from the coast range westward the surface is mountainous, hilly, and broken. Dairying, wool growing, stock raising, and the growing of filberts, winter wheat, barley, oats, and hay all flourish. The state has every character of climate, soil and production known to the temperate zone.

The fruit industry is among the most important in the country, particularly pears and apples, which are shipped to eastern markets. Prune growing and drying is also an important industry. The Weather Bureau at Portland gives the temperature (annual monthly mean) as 53.1; highest on record, 107; lowest on record, —2; total annual precipitation, 41.62 inches.

Several irrigation projects are located in the stretches of semi-arid lands in the southeast. The Owyhee Dam, one of the highest in the world, is the key of a great reclamation project and provides water for 101,476 acres near the Idaho line.

The Columbia River, on the north, carries tonnage along the whole of its 400 miles from the Idaho line, and flows into the Pacific with a width of fourteen miles at its mouth, making one of the finest harbors in the world. The Snake River, on the east, also conveys much traffic. The salmon fisheries at Astoria at the mouth of the Columbia are among the world's greatest.

Oregon has almost half of more than one trillion feet of timber standing in the three coast states, Oregon, Washington, and California. For timber cut it ranks first. Its great Columbia Highway, unexcelled for scenic beauty, Mt. Hood, and the unique Crater Lake, are points of tourist interest. Also the Malheur Wildlife Refuge, perhaps the greatest migratory bird refuge in the United States. The State University is located at Eugene; the State Agricultural College at Corvallis.

PENNSYLVANIA

Population 10,498,012 (U. S. Census, 1950)

State Capital, HARRISBURG

Pennsylvania is bounded on the north by New York and Lake Erie, east by New York and New Jersey, south by Delaware, Maryland, and West Virginia, and west by West Virginia and Ohio. Its greatest length from east to west is about 302 miles; its greatest breadth about 175 miles. Its land area is 45,045 square miles.

The surface is varied, chiefly level and slightly undulating in the east and northwest, mountainous in the interior. The Appalachian range traverses the state from northeast to southwest. In these mountains are many of the state's popular summer and health resorts. The Susquehanna, Delaware, Alleghany and Monongahela are rivers important in drainage or navigation.

Philadelphia is one of the principal ports for foreign and coastwise trade, one of the most important manufacturing cities, and with Chester, one of the chief ship-building stations. Erie and Pittsburgh are also great commercial centers. The Pittsburgh area, Johnstown, Bethlehem and Greater Philadelphia are the chief centers of steel production. Pennsylvania leads all other states in capacity for producing ingots and steel for castings, accounting for over one quarter of the national total. It leads the Nation in the production of cement, coke and coke by-products, in many manufactures, and has a virtual monopoly in the production of anthracite in the region surrounding Scranton, Wilkes-Barre and Pottsville.

There is a wide diversification of agriculture in the state, the principal agricultural counties being Lancaster, York, Chester and Berks. Lancaster and York counties are the principal tobacco raising localities, Lancaster county probably producing more of it than any other county in the United States.

The Weather Bureau at Philadelphia gives the temperature as: highest on record, 106; lowest on record, —11; average annual precipitation, 41.52 inches.

In educational facilities the state ranks high, many of the important colleges and universities of the east being located here. They include the University of Pennsylvania and Temple University, at Philadelphia; University of Pittsburgh and Carnegie Institute of Technology, both at Pittsburgh; Pennsylvania State University at State College; and Bryn Mawr, at Bryn Mawr.

POPULATION

Rank among the states (1950), third. Urban population (1950), 70.5%. In 1950, of the 10,498,012 total population, 9,844,012 were white; 654,000 were non-white.

PHILADELPHIA† (M5½), pop. 2,071,605; Philadelphia Co. (SE). 85 m SW of New York. Located on west bank of Delaware River at mouth of Schuylkill River, about 96 m from ocean. B&O; PA; READ RRs. Airlines: UAL; AA; EAL; DAL; TWA; PAA; NAL; AAA; CAP; NEA.

It is fourth largest retailing and manufacturing center and third largest wholesaling center and the second largest port in the United States. A belt line RR connects the three great trunk line systems with the 194 piers and wharves which have a total berthing space of 190,000 linear feet. 99 piers and wharves are equipped with railroad tracks. 31 are municipally owned; 7 are owned by the Federal Government. The port has two grain elevators with a capacity of 4,725,000 bushels, three coal tipples with capacity of 112,500 tons per day, six oil docks with storage capacity of 9,900,000 barrels, three fully equipped ore unloading piers, and pier, wharf and floating derricks with capacities up to 100 tons. There are 81 warehouses with a capacity of approximately 13,576,000 square feet for storage. Also 9 cold storage warehouses with a capacity of 11,944,000 cubic feet. The port facilities, in conjunction with the railroads, make it possible to transfer freight from any railroad point in the country direct to any steamship wharf in the city and vice versa. In 1955 there were 4,774 manufacturing establishments, which produced goods valued at $5,034,721,000. The more important are the petroleum and cane sugar refineries; textile mills; printing and publishing houses; clothing and worsted goods factories; foundries and machine shops; meat packing plants; paper mills; fruit and vegetable canneries; cigar factories; tanneries; textile dyeing and finishing plants. A large percentage of the Building and Loan Associations in the country are located here. Philadelphia is noted for its places of historical interest; the next to largest municipal park in the country, residential suburbs with beautiful homes, and as a medical and educational center. Here are the University of Pennsylvania and many other institutions of higher learning, including trade, business and medical and professional schools. Three suspension bridges connect Philadelphia with New Jersey and the seashore resorts. Fifteen banks. Federal Reserve Bank. Bank clearings (1957), $57,767,000,000; deposits (6-30-58), $5,637,866,000. 610,258 electric meters; 560,045 gas meters; 587,644 telephones. Three TV stations.

PUERTO RICO

Population, 2,210,703 (U. S. Census, 1950)

Capital, SAN JUAN

Puerto Rico lies between 65° and 70° west longitude and 10° and 18° north latitude. San Juan, the capital, is 225 miles east of the Island of Santo Domingo-Haiti, and 1,399 miles southeast of New York. The Island is 95 miles long and 35 miles wide, has an area of 3,435 square miles, and a coast line of about 345 miles. The territory includes also a number of smaller islands, among them Vieques Island and Culebra Island, at the east and Mona Island at the west. Puerto Rico is the easternmost island of the Greater Antilles, and one of a chain of islands extending from the tip of Florida to the coast of Venezuela.

Few areas of the United States afford such a delightful climate as Puerto Rico. Its location within the trade-wind belt and its mountainous surface make it one of the most favorable regions in the tropics. The climate is warm, but excessive temperatures do not occur. The Weather Bureau at San Juan gives the temperature (annual monthly mean) as 76.6; highest on record, 82.9; lowest on record, 60.9. Total annual precipitation is 74.47 inches.

There are two good harbors: San Juan on the north coast, Ponce on the south.

POPULATION

The average number of inhabitants to the square mile in 1950 was 645.8, making it one of the most densely populated agricultural areas in the world. The population has generally shown a steady increase; 40.5 per cent being urban and 59.5 per cent rural. In 1958, the estimated population was 2,312,000.

AGRICULTURE

The land resources of Puerto Rico are not great. Only 845,000 acres, according to Soil Conservation Service estimates, are well adapted to permanent agricultural use, of which three fourths require complex or intensive soil conservation practices.

Chemical fertilizer is used generally in the growing of sugar cane, tobacco and other field crops. Agriculture, nevertheless, is the most important source of income and employment. Agricultural produce has contributed in all years the great bulk of total exports. In 1957-58, 26.9% of the persons gainfully employed, derived their livelihood from agriculture.

Sugar cane production is the foundation on which the economic structure of the Island is based. It is the largest single source of employment. 38.7% of the gainful workers in agriculture are employed in sugar cane farming. In 1957-58 fiscal year sugar production was 919,000 tons.

Tobacco continues to hold an important place in Puerto Rico's economy. It represents the only source of cash income for many small farm growers. Cultivation of tobacco expanded rapidly until market difficulties introduced a period of decline. In 1957-58 the tobacco crop, grown under quota, reached a total of 267,000 hundredweights.

IMPORTS AND EXPORTS

Trade is chiefly with the continental United States. Because Puerto Rico is an integral part of the United States, there are no tariff barriers and it is as easy to transact business as it is in any of the states. The banking system is the same and there is no difficulty in obtaining credit ratings. Practically all the business men speak English. Puerto Rico buys more merchandise per capita from the continental United States than any country in the world, except Canada.

Shipments from the United States mainland in 1957-58 were $619,376,026. Chief imports from the mainland: vegetable food products and beverages; textile fibers and manufactures; animals and animal products; metals and manufactures (including machinery and vehicles); chemicals and related products; non-metallic minerals; wood and paper; dairy products; also fish, rice, wheat flour, dried beans, rubber products, cigarettes, manufactured cotton goods, petroleum, glass, cement, automobile parts and accessories, medicinal and pharmaceutical preparations.

Shipments to the mainland during 1957-58 totaled $443,392,976. Of this figure sugar and its by-products (rum, alcohol, molasses, acetone, butyl alcohol, bay rum), account for more than 75% of Puerto Rico's entire export income. Other exports: pineapples, tobacco, coconuts, needlework, electronic and pharmaceutical products.

Exports of coconuts in the shell in 1957-58 amounted to $647,017. Fresh pineapple exports were $499,935; canned pineapple exports, $910,246. Cucumbers, tomatoes and peppers are the principal vegetable crops exported from Puerto Rico.

MISCELLANEOUS

Mineral production in 1957 had a value of approximately $18,639,000. Cement is the principal mineral product.

Puerto Rico is making great strides in her economic and social life. A network of over 2,820 miles of hard-surfaced roads serves all cities and towns of the Island. Motor vehicle registration (1957-58, was 140,197. Not one of the Island's twelve ports is more than five hours distant by motor vehicle from any important community.

The unusual panoramas of mountains, valleys, tropical seas and white beaches provide a very fascinating attraction on a tour of the Island. Old-world spendor is found in its cathedrals. Towns are of quaint atmosphere, enlivened by new industrial plants, homes and public buildings, which are the result of the current development program. Old historic forts are of much interest. A considerable variety of tourist accommodations is available. First-class hotels, apartments with restaurants, and smaller but modern and well maintained establishments are worthy of mention. Visitors to the Island need fear none of the illness of other tropical areas.

The majority of new homes in the Island are detached and built of reinforced concrete. Electric or gas cooking facilities are available. There are (6-30-58), 363,032 electric meters; 19,387 gas meters in the commonwealth. Telephone service is supplied at a reasonable rate. Number of telephones (6-30-58), 68,923. Number of post offices (6-30-58), 106. Total bank deposits (6-30-58), $445,568,938. The United States Armed Forces operate a radio station at San Juan. There are also 29 commercial radio stations, and 6 television stations.

The educational system is much like that found elsewhere in the United States. Spanish and English are taught and spoken in the classroom. The University of Puerto Rico is a land-grant college offering a variety of undergraduate and graduate programs.

Under the Constitution put into effect July 25, 1952, the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico is governed by a Legislative Assembly of 27 Senators and 51 Representatives from 8 senatorial districts, 40 representative districts, and 11 of each at large; an Executive Branch headed by a Governor and eight Secretaries; and a Judicial Branch administered by the Supreme Court, consisting of a Chief Justice and 6 Associate Justices. The Government plans public works in support of industry and greater development of modern agriculture techniques. Wages and the standard of living are lower than on the mainland.

RHODE ISLAND

Population 791,896 (U. S. Census, 1950)

State Capital, PROVIDENCE

Rhode Island is bounded on the north and east by Massachusetts, south by the Atlantic Ocean, and west by Connecticut. Its extreme length from north to south is 47½ miles; extreme breadth, 38 miles; land area, 1,057 square miles; smallest state in area.

Beyond the Narragansett basin, the surface is mostly rough, hilly, and stony. There are no mountains and few hills of any altitude. About two-thirds of the land area is woodland. The Weather Bureau at Providence gives the temperature (annual monthly mean) as 50.6; highest on record, 102; lowest on record, —17. Mean annual precipitation is 39.41 inches.

Newport, on Narragansett Bay, is one of the most famous of America's watering places and is noted for the palatial homes built there by wealthy patrons. Rhode Island State University, located at Kingston, and Brown University, at Providence, are important among the state's institutions of higher education.

Rhode Island has the third largest per capita industrial output of all the states. It is more than eighty per cent urban, has the densest population of all the states, 748 persons to the square mile, and exerts influence out of all proportion to its size and population. Providence, the capital, Woonsocket and Pawtucket are the chief industrial centers. About a third of the state's manufactures are devoted to textiles; the manufacture of jewelry and metal products is highly important as well. Providence is an important oil port, rail center, and center of wholesale trade.

POPULATION

Rank among the states (1950), thirty-seventh. Urban population (1950), 84.6%. In 1950, of the 791,896 total population, 777,015 were white; 14,881 were non-white.

AGRICULTURE

Number of farms (1950), 2,598. Farm acreage, 191,052. Average acreage per farm, 73.5. Average value per farm, $16,941. Farms selling products over $10,000 in value, 552.

Cash receipts from farm marketings (1957): crops, $6,143,000; livestock and products (includes meat animals, dairy products, poultry and eggs), $15,033,000.

Value of sales of chief crops (1957): potatoes, $2,183,000; hay, $85,000.

Value of sales of fruit (noncitrus) (1957): apples, $381,000.

Farm value of animals on farms (1-1-58): all cattle and calves, $4,692,000; hogs and pigs, $262,000; horses and mules, $118,000; all sheep and lambs, $32,000.

Cash receipts from poultry (1957): eggs, $3,239,000; chickens (farm and commercial broilers), $1,356,000; turkeys, $251,000.

Cash receipts from dairy products (1957): all milk and cream, $8,387,000. Total milk production on farms, 128,000,000 lbs. Dairy products (1957): ice cream, 2,807,000 gallons.

FISHERIES

Total catch (1956), 141,309,000 lbs.; $4,752,000 value. Principal fish: clams, flounder, butterfish, porgy, lobsters.

MANUFACTURES

Statistics for 1954: value added by manufacture, $676,678,000. Leading industry groups: textile mill products, machinery (except electrical), primary metal industries. Total expenditures for new plant and new equipment, $27,759,000.

Final figures for value added by manufacture in each of the leading industry groups are available through Superintendent of Documents, Government Printing Office, Washington 25, D. C.

MINERALS

Value (1951), $1,278,000. Principal mineral products in order of value: stone, sand and gravel, graphite.

SOUTH CAROLINA

Population 2,117,027 (U. S. Census, 1950)

State Capital, COLUMBIA

South Carolina is bounded on the north and northeast by North Carolina, southeast by the Atlantic Ocean, west and southwest by Georgia. Its greatest length from east to west is about 275 miles, and its greatest width about 210 miles; land area, 31,055 square miles.

The surface presents nearly the same features as North Carolina, a wide sand belt along the coast, then a tract of sand hills, then rising land westward to the Blue Ridge Mountains. The highest peak, Sassafras Mountain, is 3,548 feet above the sea. The climate in the western section is comparatively cool, the central part medium, and the coast warm and humid. The Weather Bureau at Charleston gives the temperature (annual monthly mean) as 66.0; highest on record, 104; lowest on record, 7. Total annual precipitation is 45.22 inches.

The coast is indented with several harbors, Charleston, the most important one, being a prominent coast-wise and foreign shipping point. Agriculture is the state's leading occupation, with cotton the principal money crop, followed by corn, tobacco, tame hay, oats, and sweet potatoes. The University of South Carolina at Columbia and Clemson Agricultural College, lead among the institutions of higher learning.

POPULATION

Rank among the states (1950), twenty-seventh. Rural population (1950), 36.5%. In 1950, of the 2,117,027 total population, 1,293,403 were white; 823,624 were non-white.

SOUTH DAKOTA

Population 652,740 (U. S. Census, 1950)

State Capital, PIERRE

South Dakota is bounded on the north by North Dakota, east by Minnesota and Iowa, south by Nebraska, and west by Montana and Wyoming. Its length, east to west, is nearly 360 miles; width, about 240 miles; its land area is 77,047 square miles.

The Missouri River, which drains most of the state, has depth enough for boats up to six hundred tons burden. East of the Missouri the state is mostly rolling prairie, and a succession of fertile valleys are highly productive in the growing of corn, wheat, and other grains and vegetables. West of the river the land is more broken, with rich mining land in the southwestern or Black Hills region, a mountain district that is nearly 5,000 square miles in extent. It is largely forested and rich in mineral wealth. Westward from the Missouri River to the Wyoming line, in the entire west river area, are the best grazing lands. The Weather Bureau at Huron gives the temperature (annual monthly mean) as 43.6; highest on record 111; lowest on record, —43; total annual precipitation, 20.65 inches.

A feature of the state is the large area in Indian reservations—the Rosebud, Cheyenne River, Crow Creek, Pine Ridge, and the Lower Brule. In 1950 Indians numbered 23,344.

Another feature is the Mount Rushmore National Memorial, of which the first unit, a sixty-foot head of George Washington, was unveiled in 1930. Other units completed in the ensuing decade are the heads of Thomas Jefferson, Abraham Lincoln, and Theodore Roosevelt. These are all on the face of Mount Rushmore (altitude, 6,200 feet; with 1,686 acres).

The Black Hills National Forest covers 1,134,167 acres, nearly surrounding Custer State Park. The state university is located at Vermillion; South Dakota State College is at Brookings.

TENNESSEE

Population 3,291,718 (U. S. Census, 1950)

State Capital, NASHVILLE

Tennessee is bounded on the north by Kentucky and Virginia, southeast by North Carolina, south by Georgia, Alabama, and Mississippi, west by Arkansas and Missouri. Its extent from east to west is 432 miles; north to south, 109 miles; land area, 41,797 square miles.

The state is popularly divided into East, Middle, and West Tennessee. East Tennessee includes the Great Smoky Mountains, the eastern mountain border, the beautiful East Tennessee River Valley, and about half of the Cumberland Mountain plateau. Here are produced corn, cotton, apples, peaches and winter wheat. Middle Tennessee reaches from about the center of the plateau to the Tennessee River, and is a region of fertile terraces. It includes a vast elliptical basin of nearly 5,000 square miles which yields excellent grain, tobacco, and much cotton. West Tennessee extends from the Tennessee River to the Mississippi, and is somewhat broken in the east, succeeded by a rolling plain descending to the latter river. It is extremely fertile, and produces good crops of cotton and corn.

The Weather Bureau at Nashville gives the temperature (annual monthly mean) as 59.6; highest on record, 106; lowest on record, —13; total annual precipitation, 46.11 inches.

The forests of the state are extensive, covering nearly 30,000 square miles.

The Tennessee Mountains are beautiful, and make delightful summer resorts. Lookout Mountain, site of a celebrated battle during the Civil War, is of particular interest at Chattanooga. Among the many institutions of higher learning are the University of Tennessee, located at Knoxville, and Vanderbilt University at Nashville.

TEXAS

Population 7,711,194 (U. S. Census, 1950)

State Capital, AUSTIN

Texas, first in size among the states, is bounded on the north by New Mexico, Oklahoma and Arkansas, east by Oklahoma, Arkansas and Louisiana, southeast by the Gulf of Mexico, southwest by Mexico, and west by New Mexico. Its greatest length is about 740 miles; greatest breadth, 625 miles; land area, 263,513 square miles, rank in area, first.

The surface is greatly diversified. From the Sabine River to the Trinity River extends the great timber region of Texas, generally level and sandy in the south, rolling and fertile in the north. From the Trinity to the Colorado is prairie, timbered along the streams, with extensive forests of live oak, extending through central and western Texas to the Red River, called the "Cross Timbers." Four-fifths of western Texas, between the Colorado and the Rio Grande, is prairie. Big Bend National Park, in Brewster County, is noted for its unusual, rugged beauty.

Between the Colorado and the Brazos Rivers are the Comanche and Leon River Mountain Ranges. In the north and northwest are the Church and Double Mountains, the surface rising gradually until the Llano Estacado, or Staked Plains, are reached. These form a large portion of the section known as the "Panhandle," and the natural vegetation consists chiefly of grass There is some farming in this district, but the chief industry here and in the whole northwestern part of the state is stock raising. Between the Pecos and the Rio Grande are several ranges, some as high as 5,000 feet. The Weather Bureau at Houston gives the temperature (annual monthly mean) as 69.2; highest on record, 108; lowest on record, 5; total annual precipitation, 45.95 inches. At Fort Worth the annual monthly mean is 65.6; highest on record, 112; lowest on record, —8; total annual precipitation, 31.87 inches.

Almost every variety of plant grown in temperate and sub-tropical regions can be raised successfully in Texas. The principal crop, however, is cotton, its value amounting yearly to more than the rest of its crops together and more than the cotton crop of any other state.

Its mineral wealth is also great. Of chief importance is petroleum, which underlies vast areas of its surface. Crude petroleum production in 1953 was 1,079,371,000 barrels. Oil refining forms the state's leading industry, followed by wholesale meat packing and the manufacture of cottonseed oil and meal. The gas wells in the Amarillo district are the chief source of helium supply in the country. Texas leads in railroad mileage with a trackage of 15,611 in 1950.

Texas Agricultural and Mechanical College is located at College Station. The University of Texas at Austin is well known along lines of research, especially in geology. With the United States Geological Survey, it was responsible for the discovery of potash in an inland salt sea in the northwest.

Houston, the converging point of railroads, Galveston, Beaumont, Port Arthur and Corpus Christi are important seaports.

UTAH

Population 688,862 (U. S. Census, 1950)

State Capital, SALT LAKE CITY

Utah is bounded on the north by Idaho and Wyoming, east by Wyoming and Colorado, south by Arizona and west by Nevada. Its length, north to south, is about 350 miles, its width about 200 miles, land area 82,346 square miles.

Being in the Rocky Mountain region, Utah has a surface that is generally mountainous. It is, on an average, nearly 6,000 feet above sea level and much of it is a plateau broken by valleys and basins. The Wahsatch Mountains and the Uintas divide the state into two portions, that lying to the north and west in the interior basin, from which there is no drainage, and that to the south and east which forms part of the scenic basin of the Colorado River. In the Uinta range some of the peaks rise to a height of 13,500 feet. Great Salt Lake, noted for its extremely high percentage of salt, lies in the northwestern part of the state at an altitude of 4,218 feet and with an area of 2,360 square miles.

The climate is dry, stimulating and the weather exceptionally clear, with cloudless skies 300 days a year. The Weather Bureau at Salt Lake City gives the temperature (annual monthly mean) as 50.9; highest on record, 106; lowest on record, —30. Total annual precipitation is 13.45 inches.

Mountains and grazing lands comprise about two-thirds of the state, the wooded area about 7,000,000 acres. Most of the latter is situated in the National Forests. The area of land under cultivation is relatively small, although agriculture was the principal source of wealth prior to the last decade. Manufacturing, the development of oil and natural gas, as well as copper and uranium, have now become industries of major importance.

The mineral resources of Utah, which include every known mineral but platinum, are highly valuable. Semi-precious stones are found in large quantities and high grade marble and onyx are quarried.

Sixty-nine percent of all church members in Utah are Mormons or Latter Day Saints. This faith and the great Tabernacle in Salt Lake City are distinguishing features of Utah. Much of the early development of the state is due to the pioneering of the Mormons who fled to its religious security when it was little more than a wilderness. In Salt Lake City, also, is located the State University. Utah has eleven national parks and monuments of great scenic beauty, of which Zion and Bryce Canyons are the better known. The Great American Desert lies in the northwestern part of the state.

VERMONT

Population 377,747 (U. S. Census, 1950)

State Capital, MONTPELIER

Vermont is bounded on the north by Quebec, Canada, on the east by New Hampshire, south by Massachusetts, and west by New York. It is 143 miles long, from 40 to 85 miles wide, has a land area of 9,278 square miles.

The Green Mountains, by whose name the state is so often called, traverse it from north to south, as do the Taconic Mountains. These are generally covered with forests but afford excellent pasturage, an important feature in Vermont, for here is found the highest per capita gross farm income from dairy products in the Union. In this state is found, too, the largest quantity of maple sugar, its millions of maple trees producing maple products that give it first rank in quantity and a reputation for quality. East and west of the central mountains lie beautiful stretches of countryside. The best soil is found in the valley lands of the Connecticut River and on the western slope of the mountains near Lake Champlain. This body of water stretches for a hundred and twenty miles along the state's west boundary, and its picturesqueness, along with the rugged mountains and many streams, attracts many visitors to Vermont annually who find it desirable as a summer residence region and an ideal vacation spot.

The chief mineral wealth of Vermont lies in its quarries. It leads all states in production of granite and marble.

The Weather Bureau at Burlington gives the temperature (annual monthly mean) as 45.1; highest on record, 101; lowest on record, —29. Total annual precipitation is 31.61 inches.

The University of Vermont at Burlington, Middlebury College, and Norwich University at Northfield, are the leading institutions of learning.

POPULATION

Rank among the states (1950), forty-sixth. Rural population (1950), 36.6%. In 1950, of the 377,747 total population, 377,188 were white; 559 were non-white.

AGRICULTURE

Number of farms (1950), 19,043. Farm acreage, 3,527,381. Average acreage per farm, 185.2. Average value per farm, $10,343. Farms selling products over $10,000 in value, 2,251.

Cash receipts from farm marketings (1957): crops, $10,550,000; livestock and products (includes meat animals, dairy products, poultry and eggs, $102,094,000.

Value of sales of chief crops (1957): maple sirup, $3,268,000, rank, first; hay, $2,170,000; potatoes, $722,000.

Value of sales of fruit (noncitrus) (1957): apples, $1,148,000.

VIRGINIA

Population 3,318,680 (U. S. Census, 1950)

State Capital, RICHMOND

Virginia, the Old Dominion State, is bounded on the north by West Virginia and Maryland, east by Maryland and the Atlantic Ocean, south by North Carolina and Tennessee, and west by Kentucky and West Virginia. Its greatest length from east to west is about 440 miles, its greatest breadth 192 miles, land area 39,893 square miles.

The surface is divided into several natural divisions: the Tidewater, comprising the south and southeast, its soil yielding large crops of vegetables and small fruits; an extensive tableland in the center part rising to the mountains in the west; the Piedmont, the Blue Ridge and the Appalachian regions noted for their grasses; and the Shenandoah Valley region which has a rich fertile soil adapted to the growing of cereal grains, particularly corn, wheat, oats and rye. Both the Piedmont and Shenandoah areas are noted for the high quality and variety of the apple orchards.

Much of the mountain region is uncultivated, being forested with a variety of trees. Among them are valuable hardwoods, and the export of lumber is an important industry.

Of outstanding interest is Virginia's rich historical background. In the state are found the home of George Washington at Mt. Vernon, of Thomas Jefferson at Monticello, Arlington National Cemetery, Appomattox, and Old Surrender Field at Yorktown where Lord Cornwallis laid down his arms in 1781. Thousands of visitors are yearly attracted to these shrines and to Williamsburg, the restored colonial capital.

In Newport News is a large shipbuilding plant. In Hampton Roads the United States maintains a navy yard, and Fortress Monroe, between Chesapeake Bay and the James River, dominates the waterways.

The state has some noted as well as very old institutions of learning. Naming only a few, William and Mary College, second oldest in the country, founded in 1693, is located at Williamsburg; Washington and Lee University at Lexington and the University of Virginia, founded by Jefferson, at Charlottesville.

Among watering places, Virginia's Hot Springs is famous as a center of year-round social activity. The climate of the state varies with the topography, the Weather Bureau at Richmond giving the temperature (annual monthly mean) as 57.5; highest degree on record, 107; lowest, —3; total annual precipitation, 42.02 inches.

POPULATION

Rank among the states (1950), fifteenth. Rural population (1950), 46.4%. In 1950, of the 3,318,680 total population, 2,581,642 were white; 737,038 were non-white.

AGRICULTURE

Number of farms (1950), 150,997. Farm acreage, 15,572,295. Average acreage per farm, 103.1. Average value per farm, $8,449. Farms selling products over $10,000 in value, 5,822.

Cash receipts from farm marketings (1957): crops, $197,379,000; livestock and products (includes meat animals, dairy products, poultry and eggs), $241,688,000.

Value of sales of chief crops (1957): tobacco (value of production), $66,652,000, rank, fifth; peanuts, $22,687,000, rank, third; soybeans, $9,635,000; wheat, $5,994,000; corn, $4,970,000; potatoes, $4,002,000; hay, $3,094,000; sweet potatoes, $3,011,000; barley, $556,000; oats, $414,000; rye, $304,000; lespedeza seed, $122,000.

VIRGIN ISLANDS

Population 26,665 (U. S. Census, 1950)

Capital, CHARLOTTE AMALIE

(For map see Puerto Rico)

The Virgin Islands are situated about 40 miles east of Puerto Rico, and the capital, Charlotte Amalie, is 1,442 miles from New York. They consist of three principal islands: St. Thomas, area 33 square miles; St. Croix, 80 square miles; St. John, 21 square miles, and about fifty smaller ones.

They were purchased from Denmark in 1917, for $25,000,000, and, although they had been in the possession of that country for over 200 years, the language of the people is English.

Fanned by the steady trade winds, the Islands have an agreeable year-round climate despite their tropical location. They possess the physical beauty, charm and hospitality of the West Indies, and are realizing an increasing revenue from tourist trade. Tourist expenditures for the fiscal year 1956-57 were approximately $13,170,000. Of the 120,235 visitors, some 22,035 arrived by cruise ship. In addition to such regularly scheduled cruise ships, two airlines operate weekly passenger service to the Islands.

There is a public highway system, but the dearth of hard-surfaced roads remains a major problem. The second urgent requirement of the Virgin Islands is for improved housing. Such economic problems have been attacked and the people are gradually advancing in the techniques and principles of American democracy.

POPULATION

The estimated population as of July 1, 1956 was 30,061; St. Croix 13,557; St. Thomas 15,695; St. John 809. Nearly 95% are wholly or partly Negro.

The 1950 infant mortality rate was considerably less than half that of 1940, and recent years have shown further improvement in both infant and over-all death rates.

AGRICULTURE

The farm land is about five-sixths of the area of the Islands. According to the census of 1950 there were 337 farms containing 63,758 acres. Land and buildings were valued at $6,492,720.

Agriculture is the chief economic activity, with sugar as the basic industry. The total cane crop in 1950 was 99,482 tons. In 1950, 548,087 gallons of molasses were produced. Commercial planting of dry edible beans has been recently introduced.

IMPORTS AND EXPORTS

Trade is carried on mainly with the United States. Total imports regularly exceed exports. A continuous effort is being made to reduce the unfavorable trade balance, which will in the long run result in better economic stability. Limited natural resources, few industries, and small population makes this a difficult problem.

Cane sugar, alcoholic beverages, containers and cattle are the chief exports, foodstuffs, house furnishings, and machinery the chief imports.

MISCELLANEOUS

Marked advances have been made in educational fields, and in the economic and social life of the people through the expenditure of government funds. As of June, 1957, there were 28 schools with an attendance of 6,192.

The transportation of both freight and passengers by air is an increasingly important factor in commerce activities. Over 421,200 pounds of cargo and 170,600 passengers were transported by air in and out of the Virgin Islands during 1954.

There was a decrease in the number of ships entering the port of St. Thomas in the fiscal year 1957 as compared with 1956. In 1957 there were 368 merchant ships, with a gross tonnage of 2,764,613.

Modern telephone facilities are in operation on St. Thomas and St. Croix, with over 2,000 telephones in service as of 6-30-57. The first radio station in the Islands was established at Charlotte Amilie August 1, 1950. A second is also operating on the island of St. Croix. Motor vehicles registered (1956-57), 4,104. Number of post offices (1956), 5. Daily air mail service.

WASHINGTON

Population 2,378,963 (U. S. Census, 1950)

State Capital, OLYMPIA

Washington is bounded on the north by British Columbia, Canada, west by the Pacific Ocean, east by Idaho and south by Oregon. Its average length, east to west, is 330 miles, width 220 miles, land area 66,786 square miles.

The Cascade Mountains divide the state into an eastern and a western section, which contrast markedly in characteristics. A distinguishing feature of the western section is Puget Sound, with 1,594 miles of shore line and many harbors, among them the important cities of Seattle, Tacoma, Everett and Olympia. From its ports go extensive shipping and much passenger travel, to Asia, Alaska and points reached by means of the Panama Canal. Lumbering is the leading industry, western Washington being heavily wooded. The state has standing timber of about 330 billion board feet and ranks third in the nation in timber cut. Coal mining, near Puget Sound, and commercial fishing are other important industries.

The valleys are productive in vegetables, hops, and especially fruit growing. East of the Cascades wheat is grown and in the valleys are great ranges providing winter grazing. In the dry portions, extensive developments in irrigation are notable.

The shore resorts of the state are popular, especially along Puget Sound. Many of the mountain peaks rise to great heights. Mt. Rainier with an altitude of 14,408 feet is the fourth highest peak in the United States. It is in the center of a national park—the most popular tourist attraction of the State. The University of Washington is located in Seattle. The Weather Bureau at Seattle gives the temperature (annual monthly mean) as 52.0; highest on record, 100; lowest, 8; total annual precipitation, 33.28 inches.

POPULATION

Rank among the states (1950), twenty-third. Urban population (1950), 62.9%. In 1950, of the 2,378,963 total population 2,316,495 were white; 62,468 were non-white.

AGRICULTURE

Number of farms (1950), 69,820. Farm acreage, 17,369,245. Average acreage per farm, 248.8. Average value per farm, $20,744. Farms selling products over $10,000 in value, $9,936.

Cash receipts from farm marketings (1957): crops, $373,374,000; livestock and products (includes meat animals, dairy products, poultry and eggs), $204,656,000.

WEST VIRGINIA

Population 2,005,552 (U. S. Census, 1950)

State Capital, CHARLESTON

West Virginia is bounded on the north and east by Pennsylvania and Maryland, east and south by Virginia, and west by Kentucky and Ohio. Its greatest length from north to south is about 240 miles; greatest breadth, 160 miles; land area, 24,080 square miles.

The surface of West Virginia's rivers is estimated at 135 square miles, for many navigable tributaries of the Ohio River flow through the state. Transportation on the Ohio in the west is heavy. A large part of the land is mountainous and hilly, about two-thirds covered with forests. West Virginia ranks sixth in production of hardwood and has vast timber wealth. The soil of the mountain ridges is fertile to the tops, and the summits of many mountains are flat, natural meadows.

The valley of the great Kanawha is the finest grazing region in the state. No finer blue grass farms exist than those of the central, northern and Greenbrier sections. The soil is well adapted to the production of apples, peaches and other fruits, although agriculture in the state is not so important. The most valuable mineral resource of the state is its coal. The same Appalachian vein that supplies Pennsylvania gives West Virginia, too, coal of highest quality. Next to Pennsylvania it ranks highest among the states in the value of coal produced. The state also ranks high in the production of glassware, in steel works and rolling-mill products.

The University of West Virginia is located at Morgantown. White Sulphur Springs, in the eastern part of the state, is a popular health resort, with a famous golf course. The Weather Bureau at Parkersburg gives the temperature (annual monthly mean) as 54.3; highest on record, 106; lowest on record, —27; total annual precipitation, 39.41 inches.

WISCONSIN

Population 3,434,575 (U. S. Census, 1950)

State Capital, MADISON

Wisconsin is bounded on the north by Lake Superior, northeast by Michigan, east by Lake Michigan, south by Illinois and west by Iowa and Minnesota. Its greatest length from north to south is 300 miles, greatest breadth 260 miles, land area 54,705 square miles.

The surface is generally rolling, typical of the glaciated area, with high bluffs along the Mississippi and Wisconsin Rivers. Most of the 8,500 lakes are in the northern recreational area, although virtually all parts of the state have some. Large areas of this once great timberland were laid waste by ruthless cutting and fire, but today public and private planting have largely rebuilt them. The Mississippi, the Wisconsin with its more than 50 dams, and the Fox are the great working rivers, but the Chippewa, Flambeau and Rock are also well known. The state is a tourist mecca for fishing and boating; waterfowl, deer and bear are hunted in the fall.

With more dairy cattle than people, Wisconsin leads in the production of milk, powdered milk, condensed milk and cheese. It excels in the production and canning of green peas, sweet corn, and beets, is noted for its Door County cherries and Wisconsin Valley cranberries.

Manufacturing is strongest in the heavy industries, although Wisconsin is best known for its manufacture of beer, paper, and farm tractors. Many foreign ships dock at Milwaukee and Green Bay each year, and Superior shares the fabulous iron ore shipments of the open pit mines of Minnesota.

The University of Wisconsin located at Madison is best known of the 12 publicly-supported degree-granting colleges. The Weather Bureau at Madison gives the temperature (annual monthly mean) as 46.1; highest on record, 107; lowest on record, —29; total annual precipitation, 31.15 inches.

WYOMING

Population 290,529 (U. S. Census, 1950)

State Capital, CHEYENNE

Wyoming is bounded on the north by Montana, east by South Dakota and Nebraska, south by Colorado and Utah, and west by Utah, Idaho and Montana; length, east to west, 365 miles; width, 274 miles; land area, 97,506 square miles; includes 2,978 square miles of Yellowstone National Park; rank in area, eighth.

The mean elevation of the state is about 6,000 feet. The clear, dry atmosphere and the abundance of sunshine have made the state a favorite health resort, especially for persons afflicted with pulmonary diseases. Its surface is broken by mountain ranges, deep river canyons, and in the southern section flat-topped hills or buttes, which rise from valley or plain like walled cities or mounds. In the northwest corner is Yellowstone National Park, one of the world's most famous scenic resorts. It was the first national park set up by Congress. There are over 8,500,000 acres in national forests and parks. The ranch life retains much of the old-time flavor of the West, the annual cowboy round-up at Cheyenne attracting many visitors.

Stock raising is the most important industry, the state ranking third in the Union for sheep husbandry. There are extensive areas of pine and spruce timber, widely distributed throughout the mountain regions.

There are few places, except in the eastern portion, where crops can be successfully grown without additional water supply. The many rivers flow in all directions providing valuable drainage for irrigation and making possible fine crops of alfalfa, sugar beets, vegetables, and small fruits. Over 1,500,000 acres are now supplied with water. There are now 1,000,000 acres successfully cultivated by dry farming methods.

The University of Wyoming is located at Laramie. The Weather Bureau at Cheyenne gives the temperature (annual monthly mean) as 44.6; highest on record, 100; lowest on record, —38. Total annual precipitation is 14.99 inches.

POPULATION

Rank among the states (1950), forty-eighth. Rural population (1950), 48.9%. In 1950, of the 290,529 total population, 284,009 were white; 6,520 were non-white.

BRITISH COLUMBIA

Population 1,898,464 (Census of Canada, 1956)
Provincial Capital, VICTORIA

British Columbia is bounded on the north by the parallel of 60° north, on the west by the Pacific Ocean and Alaska, on the south by the 49th parallel (the boundary of the United States), on the east by Alberta. The area is 366,255 square miles. This includes a number of islands, the largest being Vancouver, which contains the capital of the province, and has an area of about 12,000 square miles. The province is about 700 miles long and 500 miles wide. The rainfall, except in some limited districts in the southeast, is abundant. There is unlimited water power everywhere. The surface is mountainous and densely wooded with trees of enormous size. The wonderful scenery of the Canadian Rockies and of the lakes and rivers attracts thousands of tourists each year. Vancouver is one of the leading ports in exporting grain and lumber.

NEWFOUNDLAND

Population 415,074 (1956 Census)

Above includes the population of Labrador, 10,814

Provincial Capital, ST. JOHN'S

(For map see New Brunswick)

Newfoundland, a large island, lies to the eastward of the mainland of the Dominion of Canada, in the Atlantic Ocean. It is separated from the mainland by the Straits of Belle Isle, the Gulf of St. Lawrence and the Cabot Straits. It is the oldest English colony, is about the size of the State of Virginia. Newfoundland is bounded on the east, north and south by the Atlantic Ocean, and on the west by the Gulf of St. Lawrence. Its extreme length is 350 miles; average breadth, 180 miles; area, 42,734 square miles. The topography is generally rugged with many lakes and rivers. The central and eastern portion of the interior is thinly wooded and consists in part of elevated plains called "barrens." The river valleys and the western part of the Island are thickly timbered.

Labrador is a Newfoundland dependency. It has a coastline of 850 miles, adds approximately 113,000 square miles to the area of the Province. Most of the inhabitants are Eskimos engaged in the cod and seal fisheries, and during the winter months in trapping.

The climate is healthful and more temperate than that of the neighboring continents. The Gulf Stream modifies the cold and the temperature is rarely below zero in the winter, and in the summer seldom exceeds 80° F. The heat from open fireplaces is sufficient to warm the houses. Winter usually sets in the first of December and lasts until the middle of April. The autumn, a period of fine weather, often lasts until November. Thunderstorms are rare, tornadoes unknown, and the fogs are confined to the shores and bays of the southeastern and southern coasts. Only 1600 miles from Ireland, Newfoundland is a vital outpost for both air travel and defense.

POPULATION

Province rank, ninth. Increase over 1951, 14.8%. Rural residents in 1956, 55%.

AGRICULTURE

Number of farms (1956), 2,387; owner operated, 2,223; with electricity (1951), 1,383. Average acreage per farm, 80.08. The most suitable areas for farming are in the Codroy Valley, Bay St. George, Humber Valley and the Avalon Peninsula. The principal crops grown are timothy hay, oats, barley, potatoes, turnips, cabbage, beets, carrots, parsnips and small fruits.

Value of livestock (1951): all cattle and calves, $2,059,340; horses, $621,425; sheep and lambs, $572,885; hogs, $88,595. Total value of livestock, poultry and bees, $3,581,985. The livestock population in 1951 included: horses, 13,335; cattle, 13,864; sheep, 73,639; swine, 2,990; goats, 6,054; poultry, 84,486.

FISHERIES

Fisheries constitute the principal industry of the Island. Total value in 1956 was $29,374,400, an increase of $1,383,900 over 1955. The most important fish, commercially, is the cod ($16,030,-700 in 1956) and the Newfoundland cod fisheries are said to be the most extensive of their kind in the world. Modernization has reached the fishing industry; the trend is now to big diesel craft, to fresh-frozen fish packing instead of hand salting. The seal fishery is also important and in 1956 the catch totalled 77,586 seals. Lobsters are in abundance while haddock, salmon, rosefish, herring, flounders, greysole, squid, scallops and mackerel, etc., are caught on an extensive scale. The whaling industry is also carried on fairly extensively, the catch in 1956 being 9,878.

FORESTS

Of the total land area of the Island about 17,145 square miles are forested, the chief components of which are spruce and balsam fir. Other species of lesser importance are white birch, pine, poplar or aspen, and larch (locally known as juniper). Within limited areas some hard maple and yellow birch are found. The forests furnish raw materials for an extensive pulp and paper industry consuming up to 900,000 cords per annum and employing up to 3,000 men per month throughout the year. Gross selling value of production (1956), $2,050,409. There were in 1956 542 licensed saw mills, producing 81,091,000 feet b.m.

FURS

Total fur farms (12-31-56), 33. Value of fur animals sold and pelts produced, $297,000. Total number of pelts taken from wildlife was 19,703 in the 1956-57 season, valued at $49,118. Principal furs: beaver, ermine (weasel), fox, lynx, mink, muskrat, otter.

MANUFACTURES

Selling value of factory shipments (1956), $123,691,344. Number of establishments, 783; number of employees, 10,502. Leading industries: pulp and paper, fish processing, breweries, sash, door and planing mills, bakery products, carbonated beverages, sawmills, printing and publishing.

MINERALS

Total value (1957), $76,244,758, rank, sixth. Principal minerals: iron ore, zinc, lead, fluorspar, copper, silver, cement.

MISCELLANEOUS

Number of post offices (3-31-58), 641; gross postal receipts, $1,645,263. Number of motor vehicles registered (1957), 47,655. Highway mileage (1956), 7,101. Dwellings under construction (7-31-58), 3,116. Number of families (6-1-57), 88,000; number of radio homes (est. 5-31-57), 80,000. Number of telephones (1-1-57), 37,746.

NOVA SCOTIA

Population 694,717 (Census of Canada, 1956)

Provincial Capital, HALIFAX

(For map see New Brunswick)

Nova Scotia consists of a narrow pininsula, connected with New Brunswick by a narrow isthmus about 16 miles wide, and off the island of Cape Breton. It is bounded on the north by the Gulf of St. Lawrence, on the east and south by the Atlantic Ocean, on the west by the Bay of Fundy and New Brunswick. It is 300 miles long and from 80 to 100 wide, with an area of 21,068 square miles, or about 13,000,000 acres. Of the entire area only 5,000,000 acres are tillable, the remaining land being covered with dense forests. The Cobequid Range extends through the northern interior of the province and on each side of this range are rich arable lands where the agricultural activities of the province center. The valley of the Annapolis is noted for its beauty and fertility. The capital city, Halifax, is the winter port for mail steamers and has direct communication with Liverpool, Boston, Baltimore, Quebec and the West Indies. The harbor, which is over one-half mile wide at its narrowest part, is one of the finest in Canada.

PRINCE EDWARD ISLAND

Population 99,285 (Census of Canada, 1956)

Provincial Capital, CHARLOTTETOWN

(For map see New Brunswick)

Prince Edward Island is bounded on the north by the Gulf of St. Lawrence, east by Cape Breton Island, south by Nova Scotia proper, and west by New Brunswick. The greatest length is 130 miles; the breadth varies from 34 miles to 4 miles; area is about 2,184 square miles. The surface is undulated, and the greatest elevation is 500 feet. The climate is healthful, and milder than that of the neighboring mainland. There are fine beaches along the northern shore facing the gulf, and the island is becoming popular as a summer resort.

QUEBEC

Population 4,628,378 (Census of Canada, 1956)

Provincial Capital, QUEBEC

Quebec is bounded on the north by Hudson Bay, east by Labrador and the Gulf of St. Lawrence, south by New Brunswick, Maine, New Hampshire, New York and the Ottawa River, which separates it from Ontario and west by Hudson Bay and Ontario. It is the largest of the provinces, its extreme breadth from east to west being 1,080 miles, its length from north to south, 1,280 miles, its area 594,860 square miles. The surface south of the St. Lawrence is generally hilly, further north it is mountainous and rocky and abounding in rivers and small lakes. The extreme northern part is an unexplored wilderness. A great part of the surface of the province is covered with forests. More than four-fifths of the people are French. The city of Quebec and the neighboring villages, noted for their quaintness and charm, attract great numbers of tourists yearly, netting the provinces a large income. Montreal, too, attracts tourist trade. It is the largest city and chief commercial center of Canada.
